

Reading classroom learning - A springboard for learning support assistants

Everyone supporting learners needs a foundation of understanding about teaching and learning but few learning support assistants (LSAs) have had chance to build frameworks that go beyond personal experience. This workshop focuses on what LSAs need to know to read student learning accurately and use effective interventions in classrooms. This CUREE based workshop is for those who support CPD for teaching assistants within colleges but can be delivered direct to LSAs in college.

The workshop will:

Focus on how LSAs can develop some key skills to support student learning and maximise the learning opportunities they receive in college.

- explore approaches to effective questioning to support learning
- how to promoting independent learning through group work
- identify suitable teaching and learning foci for experimentation
- use a variety of tools to scaffold their own professional learning and plan to implement new practice in the classroom

This workshop is designed for:

- Teaching staff who support CPD for LSAs within colleges
- It can also be adapted for in-house delivery to learning support assistants

You will learn about:

- Understanding why and how collaboration works for students
- Challenging expectations
- Spotting and using different kinds of talk
- Being good at being coached and contributing to other people's learning
- Where to find out more – in class and beyond

The CUREE guarantee

Our facilitators will:

- Make research and evidence accessible and useful focusing on high leverage strategies
- Provide tools to sustain learning and help staff refine strategies in the light of student responses
- Introduce learning in a way that is active, engaging and helps with the collection of evidence about staff learning to support the evaluation of impact
