What Works Well?

Make sure that your support staff get the most from your in-school learning opportunities!

The number of support staff has trebled in the last 10 years and schools recognise that they have an important role to play – but their training is key and everyone needs a foundation of understanding of teaching and learning to make the most of CPD opportunities. Now that schools are increasing their school-based CPD you need to make sure that your TAs are well prepared to benefit from in-school learning opportunities.

This workshop will:

Focus on providing your support staff with the learning foundation needed to make the most of in-school on-going CPD and learning opportunities.

This workshop is designed for:

Support staff involved in teaching and learning

Support staff will learn the key things they need to know about:

- Making the most of lesson planning
- Working from pupil starting points
- Knowing when to hold back and when to intervene
- Understanding why and how collaboration works for pupils
- Challenging expectations
- Spotting and using different kinds of talk
- Being good at being coached and contributing to other people's learning
- Where to find out more – in class and beyond

Be confident of quality:

- All CUREE programmes are rooted in the evidence about what really works in classrooms and how teachers learn.
- All of the workshops are by experienced facilitators
- We will use interactive activities and powerful tools to encourage deep learning.
- You will leave equipped to share your learning with colleagues in school.
